The Storm Da Vinci Code falls down on Cannes

Festival of Cannes: "Da Vinci Code" a bad surprise? Ever seen for an opening of festival

The 59^e Festival of Cannes begins with the presentation very mediatized about "Da Vinci Code". The film was badly accomodated by the journalists who discovered it Tuesday evening. The thriller of Ron Howard, disappointed much people. In spite of an impressionant media blow around this film: Giant posters, covers of magazines, television... success with the festival did not follow. It left the projection of press amazed, with some whistles at the end of the two hours thirty of projection.

Da Vinci Code is a film joining suspense works of Leonard and religious stories. After the assassination of the conservative, an investigation is launched into the works of the famous Leonard de Vinci, throughout film the beautiful Audrey Tautou and the famous Tom Hanks all will try to decipher the code and to understand the secrecies which call into question of the bases of humanity...

This film which disappointed many people isn't approach it makes about religion. Will it go until starting campaigns to prohibit its projection? Whereas catholic gatherings are made feel for "blasphemy", Ron Howard and his actors relativize the polemic and controversies started by the subject, while claiming "It's a fiction" in many interviews.

It can be a bad idea to adapt the book of Dan Brown to the cinema. Film except competition which could have win the media palm! Will see which reception the public will reserve at him.
